

EAST SEPIK PROVINCE

The mighty Sepik River- one of the world's great waterways- runs through East Sepik Province, known for its traditional villages, mountain ranges and dense tropical jungle. The river is 1126km long, and navigable for almost its entire length. Wewak, with its palm fringed beaches, is the provincial capital and port. Cape Wom, outside of Wewak town, is the site of the Japanese surrender on 13 September 1945. Most of East Sepik is accessible by air and there are daily flights from Port Moresby to Wewak. The Sepik people still observe elaborate scarification and initiation ceremonies.
